Essay on India's Forest Policy and Law

Essay on India's Forest Policy and Law Forests are a renewable source and contribute substantially to economic development. They play a major role in enhancing the quality of environment. India is one of the few countries which has a forest policy since 1894. It was revised in 1952 and again in 1988. Main plank of [...]

Forest Law in India - Policy and Assessment - iPleaders

ABSTRACT. This paper focuses on the 'Forest Law in India: Policy and Assessment'. Apart from dealing with the Indian Forest Act, and the development of the other allied acts in relation to the environment and forests in particular, the paper also intends to focus on the formation of a distinct environmental jurisprudence in relation to forests and its relationship to the dynamic qualities of a democratic polity in India.

The curious case of India's missing forest policy

The curious case of India's missing forest policy. It has been nearly four years since the Indian government started work to overhaul India's national forest policy which will govern and guide the sector for the next 20-25 years but it is yet to be finalised. In addition to the missing national forest policy, other pieces of the forest regulation puzzle are missing including a central policy on inviolate forests and a nationally-accepted definition of 'forests'.

Forest cover increase in India: The role of policy and ...

Reasons for the positive relationship between per capita income of the state and forest cover in India can also be attributed to the fact that as the country progresses, increase in awareness levels leads to an increase in pressure to improve environmental quality, enforced by policies such as the Forest Conservation Act (1980) and Environment Protection Act (1986), which in turn have a positive impact on forest areas.

Forest Policy, Institutions, and REDD+ in India, Tanzania ...

This article investigates forest policies and institutions surrounding REDD+ in three heavily forested countries: India, Tanzania, and Mexico. The comparative analysis leads to three key insights. First, each of the case study countries has multiple land tenure statutes that result in different distributions of the costs and benefits of forest protection for key stakeholders.

India's forests are under threat | Environment News | Al Jazeera

Denying community rights on forests From the colonial era to post-independence years, the forest policies of India were primarily focused on commercial forestry and exclusionary conservation.

'Draft National Forest Policy 2018 violates indigenous rights'

"The Draft National Forest Policy 2018 seeks to seize the powers of the gram sabhas under the PESA Act and the Forest Rights Act i.e. control over the community forest resources and JFM by launching a National Community Forest Management (CFM) Mission," states the letter.

A Critical Analysis of Forest Policies of Pakistan ...

The first forest policy of Pakistan was announced in 1955 followed by the forest policies of 1962, 1975, 1980, 1988 as part of the National Agricultural Policy, 1991, and the latest in 2001. Most of the forest policies were associated with the change of government.

National Forest Policies of India: 1894, 1952 and 1988

The video is a compilation of three National Forest Policies (NFP's) that is 1894, 1952 and 1988. It sums up the objectives, underlying principles and various focal points of the NFP's. It is interesting to note where the first two policies focused more on revenue, it was actually the policy of 1988 that finally talked about conservation in terms of ecosystem and looked at local communities to take part in Forest Conservation and propagation. Written, Narrated and Presented by Kamini Durgapal, reviewed by Nikita. Made in collaboration with the Ginkgo Talks team.

Save our Forests! | National Forest Policy 2018 Explained by Dhruv Rathee

Indian government has released the draft for new National forest policy 2018. Many sections of this draft look to privatising the forest in our country by opening up land for commercial plantations by corporates and industries. India's Forest Laws: Explained

At least a dozen forest laws have been formulated in India like the Forest Act 1865, Forest Policy 1894, Forest Act 1927, Van Panchayat Act 1996, Tribal Rights Act, 2006. Some of these British-era acts were well thought out as compared to the Indian counterparts. This is because the British looked at forests as a storehouse of wealth (timber, mining, land, water, animals, hunting). But in today's policies, corruption has become so rampant that the adivasi communities have been sidelined, and the timber mafia has collaborated with Panchayats to profit from the forests. The new National Forest Policy 2018 draft, however, fails to shed light on this issue, and instead focusses on privatisation of the forests to increase the country's green cover to 33%. An ambitious goal of course, but with no real thought. It's perhaps futile to use science and technology to produce forests in arid regions, rather than protecting existing forests from fires, construction and urbanisation. #Environment #ForestFires #India
